COMPANY RECEIVES “MOST PROMISING TRANSITION AWARD” AT THE 2023 ESG WORLD SUMMIT AND GRIT AWARDS

The Directors of Nickel Industries Limited (‘Nickel Industries’ or ‘the Company’) are pleased to announce the Company’s 80% owned Hengjaya Mine was recently awarded the "Most Promising Transition Award" at the ESG World Summit and GRIT Awards 2023 in Bangkok.

The accolade was awarded for Hengjaya Mine’s leadership in transforming its business operations to contribute towards sustainability and its numerous initiatives to minimise the impact of its operations on the environment.

The Summit and Awards are organised by CorpStage and ESG Research Foundation. The GRIT Awards stand for: Growth, Resilience, Intention and Innovation, and Transcending. The Awards aim to “advance responsible capitalism” and green initiatives recognising outstanding companies which are making strides towards a sustainable world through impactful environmental, social, and governance (ESG) practices.

Commenting on the ESG Summit and GRIT Awards accolade Nickel Industries' Managing Director Justin Werner said:

“We are proud to receive the ‘Most Promising Transition Award’ at the recent ESG World Summit which reflects the hard work and numerous initiatives the Nickel Industries and Hengjaya Mine teams have undertaken. These efforts have not only resulted in the receipt of this award but also a ‘Green Proper’ rating from the Indonesian environmental authority (one of only two nickel mines in Indonesia to achieve this rating), as well as one silver, four gold and two platinum trophies at the Environmental and Social Innovation Awards (ENSIA) in September 2022.”
